

My Dear Fellows, Americans (Nostradamus and me)

December 31, 2008

We have heard the cliché at one time or another when someone says, “Some of my best friends are X, or Y, or Z.” Well, a former business partner and good friend wrote to recommend that I not refer to Americans as the anti-Christ, since my American readers might not appreciate that.

Since he could misread what I believed to be plain, I will end the year with what I thought were two well-known realities (or at least the second), so that there is no lack of clarity. After all, if he could misread what was written...

Firstly, I commence with the all-true cliché: Many of my best friends, business associates and, yes, girlfriends have been Americans. And this started when I was 9-years old when a girl from the Bronx was visiting the World’s Fair – “Expo 67.” (Yes, that’s how the baseball team got its name.)

Okay, to the issue: Nostradamus wrote that there would be three anti-Christ. The first two came to be known as Napoleon and Hitler, according to the clues that he had given. His final anti-Christ would have the letters “bus” follow either the first letter, or precede the last letter of his name.

Why do I even consider clairvoyance as anything but silly? Through my travels of life, I have come to experience many things that I had previously laughed about at one time or another. However, direct experience can be rather convincing, particularly if one is further given experience as why such phenomena is even possible and, I should add, not even considered a big deal by so many, particularly, though not exclusively, in such places as India.

There, a man looked at my forehead and wrote down my mother's name and birth date. The clairvoyant see symbols, so they write them down. Good thing too, because I doubt that this man would have been able to pronounce "Luba" anyway.

I also had a man do something similar with me in a comedy club here in Montreal. He is a well traveled domestic, religiously and ethnically. Such powers have no human preferences or prejudices. All this to say that I have had direct experiences that made me open-minded, including direct experience as to how these things are even possible, even though I have no such capacities myself.

In any event, as a humorous aside, I should add that the nearly unilingual Indian clairvoyant and the Montreal born Christian have one thing in common: Their more serious occupations ("day jobs") take them to Switzerland, where they advise private bankers. Of course, they also do special occasions such as weddings and Bar Mitzvahs, to pay the bills (as we say), I'd imagine.

In conclusion, my American friends - and all readers - please know that my more esoteric experiences know no prejudice, and my wishes for health and prosperity do extend to all equally...no less so to my dear friends, associates and readers south of the 49th.

Happy New Year's,

Sid Klein

LEGAL NOTICE: This market letter is the work product and intellectual property of Mr. Sidney Klein. It arises out of his training and profession as an international expert on financial equities. It is a private correspondence from Mr. Klein to his subscribers. Any person who copies or otherwise disseminates this letter becomes subject to international criminal and/or civil prosecution under the Universal Copyright Convention and the Berne Convention for the Protection of Literary and Artistic Works. Nearly all countries in the world have signed both of these Conventions and have pledged to enforce them through their own legal systems. In addition, Interpol may be called upon to assist in the international enforcement of these Conventions through its processes of arrest and extradition. If you are the recipient of a copy of this market letter, whether through the internet or by facsimile, you should immediately report to Mr. Klein the name of the person or entity who sent it to you. Send your email to sidklein@sidklein.com.

DISCLAIMER: This market letter is intended to assist in the dissemination of information to private subscribers. The information contained herein represents Mr. Klein's best efforts in good faith to advance knowledge to his clientele, but there can be no implied guarantee as to its accuracy or completeness. The information is given as of the date appearing on this market letter, and Mr. Klein assumes no obligation to update the information or advise on further developments relating to the information provided herein. No solicitation to buy or sell securities is intended, and none should be inferred. Investments are inherently risky, but investment risk itself is a function of individual preferences. Thus any opinions, recommendations, or judgments expressed in this market letter are of necessity abstract and general. They must be modified, accepted, or rejected by individual subscriber/investors whose risk averseness cannot be known to Mr. Klein.